Replicating the sample bottles sent to us from stock held at the Distilleries ? these wee 20cl bottles appear to have been hand written by one of the team pulling the sample (full marks for legibility!). A selection of bottlings from the 700cl capacities is used to fill about 150-200 of the 20cl bottles ? so these are little rarities ? small bottles, in small quantities, from a very small bottling, from a small family company. They do allow the consumer however to taste a small amount before investing in the larger bottle (for himself or a Club) and they are also causing quite a stir in the gift giving sector of the whisky business.
