The clothes are the packaging of the body with their own specific functions. It is also an ultimate accessory of seduction. The goal is to create a relation between packaging products and packaging of the body. Based on the structure of boxes, this approach translates into the collection by the use of finishes and materials referring to the package. The clothes are made of both coated fabrics and materials used for packaging such as paper, plastics, foams, etc. Overall, the project is a way to illustrate the problem of wrapping products demonstrating the overuse of materials into a set of overlays.
